Jim,

Pal-oh buddy oh pal.
It seems like forever since the freshman overnights but we're still buddies - even after you spread deedeevent all over the boys cabin, etc.
We've had some special times Jimmy - how 'bout those moonsets? You will always have a place in my heart - just for being
you. N.H. retreat made all the difference.
I now I can laugh at how 'intert' you were.
How young we were.
I how naïve & stupid
I was. You're always been the greatest & you were love! I of the few who have really cared for me. It'll be a sad day in hell
what Jim - but you know I'm always there. Keep in touch studmuffin.
Love Always,
Clem

Love, Jamie

Buds forever!!

Jim,
You fast very stinkily. You are a homeboy. But you Remember was awesome.
Partying was live. The whole thing was live. Have a Bizarro time @ uw next year. I would go there but it's not that hard. U of Oregon is much better and liver. You'll never know. Bye Bye Baby see you this summer. Bye Bye

Jim,
your one helluva guy and I'm so glad that we're "buds!!" so many memories w/ dances, potting and phone conversations!

You can always make me laugh whenever. I'm really upset that Notre Dame didn't work out for all of us ~ I was looking forward to seeing your nice css and your wit face all the time. Oh well, I guess I will live.

Good luck at U of W. Don't forget me and call me over the summer so we can party! I love you and will miss you lots.

Jim -

You're a great guy, this year I'm so happy I got to know you finally - one year out of four ain't bad. I also think you should try out for the U.W. soccer team. Pal
we've got to party a lot this summer at my house and anywhere. Let's keep in touch - 932-5816.

Thanks for everything
Jimmy, your friend -
Mike McHaul

P.S. I WILL be a pussy someday !!

Shea you stud. All I want to leave you w/ is a few ^{S.P.} sincere words of wisdom:

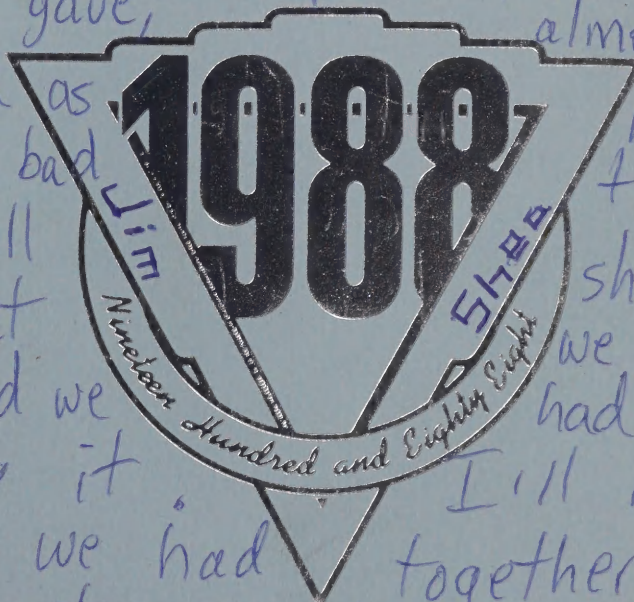

1. Cope it satisfies - always a dip is appropriate no matter what. S.E.D.
2. Always share your stinky fingers w/ a friend.
Especially to make them understand why your late.
3. If the heat is on: 1) GO FOR THE WINDOW 2) JUMP
3) Egg THE MANAGER.

Shea, you better stay close by and take me to the Phi G's and we'll drink the brews w/ Bill A.
Have fun man and all that... PARTY!!!

Jimmy Shea, you have to know who this is signing your yearbook, and if you don't, well then too bad because I'll write so much that you'll have to turn the page to find out.
Anyways, ~~the~~ all I can say is that I've had some of the Pinhead best times with you in these

(C. Ten) three years. Egging in Ballard, Swale, Egging w/Letflier, Screwing around in the locker room, Soccer, partying, etc.

Too bad you never have gone yogurt bombing with us. That was a rad speech that you guys gave, almost as good as mine.

Jim
Thanks alot for the rides
in the morning & afternoon
It was real great being able to move into the neighborhood & do physics. Thanks for being a friend. Don't do too much work in Alaska & keep in touch maybe we can party at Figo's
Thanks your friend
Reed a lake (Reid)

our goals in soccer but worked hard together and we damn good time doing it forget the good times we had we definitely have to stay in touch and party some more. Since I'm also in college now, →

Jimmy -
Ever since our Freshman overnighter I realized a few things about you. The first is that you are one hell of a guy. The fury will always hold a place in my memories, as will the flight to moss.
The second is you are one hell of a chewing tobacco man. Kodiak, cape, whatever. And in closing I would like to say you are a really good friend, someone I know will be looking out for me. Since we are going to the UDNB next year, I won't say any more goodbyes. You are rad to the max. Just like your Dad.
The Jibbs

You'll have no problem getting me into the Fiji House. Take care, buddy and good luck in life.

Definitely buds for life!

Your pal,

John Marshall

P.S. - Tell 'em lies!"
& remember

Deny everything 11 20

Jim - I know what your in search of. Actually I think your an awesome guy. I wish I new you better and I wish we partied more together - you'll always do well wherever you go. If you need a favor (not sex) in twenty years or so, look me up. Keep on charming Mr. Thoms. Don't party too much. Take care.

Remember JSS ^{Joe} lives on forever!

*A*t Prep, we found friends in our classes and co-curricular activities. The more involved we became, the more friends we made. Knowing that there could be a life-long friend around every corner, behind every door, and in every person, we constantly searched for those whom we felt best reflected who we were. Our friends were the people who we entrusted with our critical teenage secrets and who laughed at our jokes. It was their shoulders we cried upon and their smiles that cheered us during times of crisis.

Our best high school memories were those we spent with friends. Whether shopping downtown or merely sitting around the television on a Saturday night, friends were the element that made our Prep days special. Each of us had our best buddies, but every day brought us closer together as a group. Many of the friends we met at Prep are ones who will have journeyed with us throughout our lives; those with whom we parted at graduation always live in our memories as integral parts of our Prep days. In our three or four years at Prep we met hundreds of people — each one a friend.

High school was a time for each of us as individuals to open new doors and discover our talents, the things we were good at, and the things we enjoyed. At Prep participation was a big turnout at football games. Participation was raising your hand in collegio ... deciding to run for a class office ... student government meetings at 7:15 ... soccer practice every day for two whole hours. Participation was evident in chorus and Harlequin Players ... in singing Christmas carols at Rainier Square (and missing school). Participation was the Science Club ... the cheerleaders who screamed and yelled filling us with Panther pride ... our Natural Helpers who were there in a crisis or when we just needed to talk. Participation was the Echo Staff who worked long and hard to produce the best yearbook possible.

Participation was all around us. Though each of us was involved in our own way, participation was the glue that held the Prep community together. The results of our participation were the tradition and legends we left behind. We left them for future generations of Prep students to evaluate and imitate and emulate as all of us continue in search of even better ways to belong.

There were a variety of people from different backgrounds at Seattle Prep; however, they all had one thing in common. They were all here to experience being a part of the rigorous academic program that Prep offers. The Jesuit education the students received gave them the opportunity to grow and mature into well-rounded members of their community. Included in that process was worrying about teachers' demands, keeping that all important "good GPA", simply making it from one class to the next in time and in a studious frame of mind, homework, homework, homework, and let's not forget homework. From registration day to third trimester finals day we were STUDENTS and that meant STUDY. We worked hard and finally conquered that seemingly endless stream of words and numbers that now have become part of us. Though at the time it may have been hard to convince us that weekends were really made for Algebra, as time moves us ever forward in search of fulfillment and success we realize ever more strongly that it was the heart and the mind we nurtured here which carries us beyond our wildest high school dreams of achievement and in search of even greater academic excellence.

Community was the combined efforts of students and faculty at Prep. The more we gave of ourselves to our community, the further we opened the door to an understanding of the worldwide community; and like that community, at Prep there was someone to fill every niche. The diversity of students, culturally, racially, and socially, made for the rich combination that embodied the Prep community. Living in this environment of intellectuals allowed each one of us to grow and learn from each other. Our experiences as part of this community have enabled us to go forth and make the transition into being an effective part of the worldwide community.

We were thankful for the opportunities that the people at Prep provided for us. In our brief years there we attained the irreversible abilities to live, love and learn. We were transformed from freshmen in search of our selves to juniors and seniors in pursuit of our role in a community. To begin that transformation in the midst of a warm and concerned Christian community surely helped us appreciate the good in ourselves and the promise of lives lived in concert with humanity in search of peace.

A Day Loved and Loathed

Registration Day acknowledged the end of summer and marked the commencement of a search for a new beginning. Fighting off the urges for a few extra minutes of sleep, we made our way to school to face a new year of challenges and great expectations. First glimpses of old and new classmates, teachers, and classrooms proved to be exciting for new and old Prep students alike. Through all the commotion, we made our way in and out of the crowded halls and doorways in search of the next stop on the Registration Day train.

Everyone spoke of Registration Day aspirations: attaining a "top" locker, being in the same classes as best buddies, and, of course, trying to beat the crowd to purchase those dreaded schoolbooks! We always dreamed of our classes being easier than the year before, but Registration Day, gave us a rude awakening. In all the frantic hubbub of confusing schedules, wrong combinations, and mistaken bearings, we caught a faint feeling of school year stress. Nevertheless, we found a way to have a good time by bringing the joys of the summer past into the hectic, but fulfilling, world of Seattle Prep.

On the Quest to Look the Best!

Fads and trends at Prep were always coming and going. Yet there were some fairly long-lasting fashion statements. Jeans were something all of us wore (and probably always will). Randomly faded acid washed denim was especially popular. It came as mini skirts, long skirts, tight skirts, shirts, jackets, and of course, jeans. Body-conscious sweaters, turtlenecks, tank tops, sleeveless turtlenecks and casual tees were the girls' favorites. As for the feet, tennies were worn by all; but tennies came of age in the 80's. Reebok and Avia brought the ever popular low profile classic Keds into the high-tech world (at an equally high-tech price). Bass loafers and Esprit slingback flats were a must that year, and the everlasting, ever stylish salt water sandals were really cool in October's 80 degree days (remember the Seattle water shortage?).

For the guys it was surfing tees and classic faded 501's. Sweats were big and easy. Adidas were hip from visors to thongs (as were Fila). Few tied their tennies, tucking the laces into the shoe was sufficient. Converse high tops in a multitude of colors were worn. And if the alarm clock was early and loud enough even knit sweaters and styled hair were seen.

It all depended on individual choice. Some didn't seem to care while others were obsessed with being the best. There were forerunners who "wore it before" it became such a fad. And there were the die-hards wearing their Brittanica and AC/DC shirts long after it was hip. A few had their very own style. A kind of eclectic view of fashion. All in all we all looked fine as we opened that eternal closet door looking for the quintessential outfit.

Thirty-Six to Six

A search for a great Homecoming is a memorable occasion. It was what high school was all about. Spirit in the form of Homecoming Week . . . the secret desire to be king or queen . . . football players gearing up for the big game . . . freshmen getting ready for their first big high school event . . . a search for a date . . . hoping, praying the answer will be yes . . . a time for dressing up . . . enjoying your friends . . . begging for the car "just for tonight" . . . dancing fast . . . dancing slow and close.

Panther Pride

Prep Spirit Week, the five days before the Homecoming game and dance, were fulfilled to say the least. Every class competed for the Spirit trophy (that the juniors and seniors always seemed to win). Each day had a theme. Monday, Sweats Day, spotlighted college sweatshirts (especially Harvard and Stanford). Hat Day was Tuesday; period baseball caps and sailor hats topped most Prep students. Wednesday was Class Colors Day: red for seniors, yellow for the junior Chiquitas, purple for the sophomores, and pink for the freshmen (hence the class name "the Embryos"). Thursday, the best of all, was 70's Day. Spirited individuals wore ding-dong bellbottoms two feet wide, and huge polyester collars. In the lunchroom there was 70's dancing to the BeeGees. Friday was the traditional Blue and White Day. A few poisoned their hair with blue and white color but for the most part it was striped rugby shirts and tees in abundance.

The Homecoming assembly was high-spirited, with the royalty ceremoniously descending the bleachers. The winners: Baroness Tiffany Purvis and Baron Joe Trippy, Duchess Cory Turla and Duke Phil Tribble, Princess Laura Hemmy and Prince Matt Reiman, and Queen Lynn Hashimoto and King Jim Shay. That set the mood for the caravan to the winning football game and the Homecoming Dance the next night. Undoubtedly the week was enjoyed by all.

Friday Fellowship

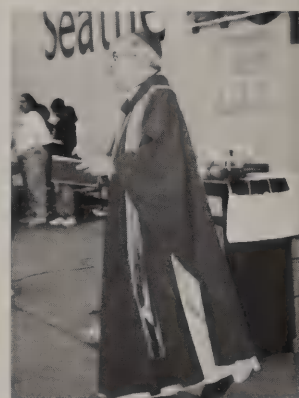

Every Friday the Prep community came together for a special 45 minutes of hope, friendship, peace, love and compassion.

These topics were all discussed throughout the year in liturgy. Ms. Mudd and Ms. Brown teamed together as the coordinators. They prepared the readings, made sure each celebration went smoothly, and helped each class plan their designated liturgy. Each religion teacher and his/her classes prepared up to two of the liturgies this past year.

The largest liturgy of the year was the Christmas Mass. Ms. Mudd said it was a great success, 'Ninety' percent of the student body attended, it was great!"

Winter Playing

"7om Jones", our winter play, was different than past plays. The director was Bruce Wynn, who just started teaching at Prep this past year. He did a great job of it, the play was fantastic.

A comedy set back in 18th century England, "Tom Jones" was in search of elaborate costumes to fit the period. Instead of making the majority of costumes, as the drama department did in past years, Mr. Wynn found professionally made costumes. They worked out great and added that touch of class that made "Tom Jones" an incredible success.

Prep Sings the Blues

A new development for the 1987-88 school year was the Adelphia Blue Choir. The twenty students directed by Mrs. Georgie Decker, the Seattle Prep music teacher, did four performances at Prep for different occasions throughout the year. The highlight of this first season was a Christmas concert at the Four Seasons.

There were many reasons why students chose to enter the chorus. Some people wanted to prepare for the spring musical and some wanted to improve their vocal talents. But, most importantly, as Jerel Frauenheim stated, "It was a good way to get involved and have fun."

Dancing the Night Away

7 he dances that the Dance Committee organized, along with the various dances that the different classes planned were a great hit. They made more money together, than the dances of any previous year. It was also the first year that homecoming was a formal date dance. This new plan for homecoming was extremely successful. Basically, everyone was looking for a good time as they danced into a new day.

Hire the band, then . . .

Dance Committee was a very important group to most of the students at Seattle Prep during the 1987-88 school year. Suzanne Williams, as head, along with the other members of the committee worked hard to plan the summer, back to school, homecoming, and spring dances.

While their main goal was to plan dances for the whole school to enjoy, they also made new friends and had a lot of fun. Dance committee, for many, was a learning experience-as Phil Hendrix put it, "Dance Committee was a great experience for me because it helped me to learn how to organize functions."

Lean On Me!

7 his year there were 55 Natural Helpers — 23 of whom were new at the task. And just what was a Natural Helper? It was that person who said “hi” when you looked upset. That person who who just happened to be there when you needed him/her the most. That hug, that smile. All those little things that can mean so much.

It was a year when the Natural Helpers worked in quiet and mysterious ways; making you laugh, smile and feel okay when things didn't look too great. The Natural Helpers also worked in more obvious ways by teaching refusal skills to freshman. But for the most part it was a subtle year. A smile. A smile that meant so much when you were feeling down.

Grueling Government

Mr. Gummersal had trained the government well. Their goals were clearly outlined and their objectives clearly stated. It was to be a FUN year. The government retreated and retreated. Brainstorming abounded early Tuesday mornings. Each officer devising and scheming a plan for FUN. Oh, making fun was a serious business. From Human Bowling to Jello Wrestling to the ELMA trophy under the guise of democracy the ASB ruled the other officers with an iron fist. Laughter must abound, the ASB stormed, or else. So they all laughed till their sides ached and their stomachs hurt. Soon the entire school caught on and it was a jovial year indeed. Ahhhh what a happy ending.

Earbook staff meetings were held at the beginning of each week in a small room in Peyton Hall. Though the room was small, it was big enough for all the work that went on at the meetings which were overseen by Ms. Tess Matusek, the faculty moderator, and Maria Navarro, the editor. Both of them put in a lot of time and energy guiding everyone every step of the way. They made sure that everyone did his/her job, and that the work was all finished by the time the deadline came around.

Staff members had their appointed tasks to do. For instance, Sara Wright wrote copy, Martha Flor designed layouts, Merissa Goldstein took pictures and everyone helped to do the many small jobs that had to be done. They all sacrificed their own time to do all these jobs, working to finish before the deadline. But not only did they help in putting the book together, they also designed the cover and every page thereafter. They made the decisions based on the desire to create a book that would not only represent the school, but would represent themselves, their work, and the pride they took in that work.

A Spirit Sensation

Seven enthusiastic, hard working, and dedicated girls were what made up the 1987-88 Seattle Prep cheer squad. Diversity in their ages, ideas, personalities, and talents made them not only one of the most unique, but also one of the most successful squads Prep has ever had. With the help of moderator, Debbie LaZerte, through endless hours of practice, games and spirit promoting activities, a sense of unity developed within the squad. As their compatibility grew, so did their spirit. Senior cheerleader Colleen Cox admitted, "It took a lot of confidence, hard work, and effort to stand in front of the entire student body just to promote spirit. When there was positive crowd response it was well worth the effort, but we felt the most challenging part was when the crowd was unresponsive. This was when we really had to take on the responsibility of being cheer-LEADERS."

What exactly was there to gain from being a cheerleader? The girls felt that confidence, willpower, and friendship were the main benefits that made their year as Seattle Prep cheerleaders worthwhile. The girls had one final statement, "Thanks Debbie! All we can say is . . . CHICKEN SALAD!"

... Fall and Winter Sports

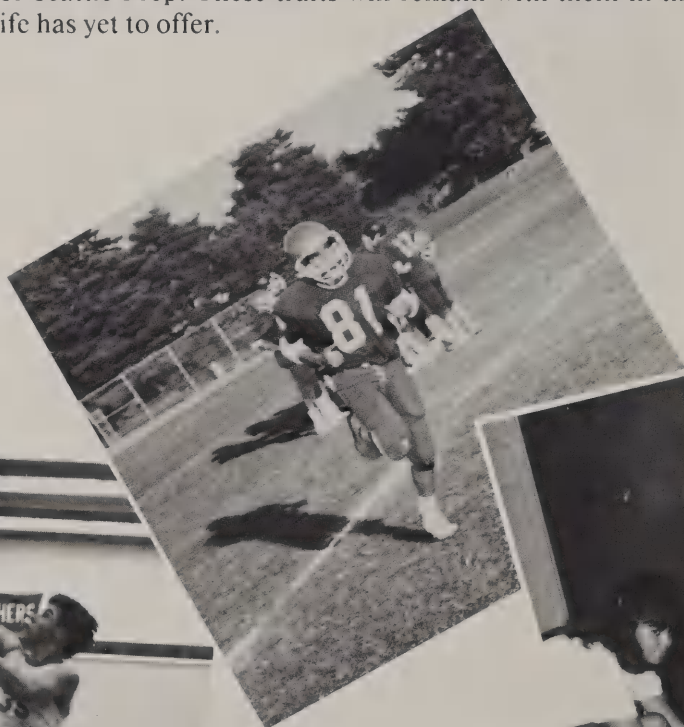

*D*ear Lord, in the battle that goes through life I ask but a field that is fair; A chance that is equal with all in the strife, A courage to strive and to dare; And if I should win, let it be by the code, with my faith and my honor held high; And if I should lose, let me stand by the road And cheer as the winners go by.

And Lord may my shouts be ungrudging and clear, A tribute that comes from the heart; And let me not cherish a snarl or sneer or play any smiling part; Let me say: There they ride on whom's laurels bestowed since they played the game better than I, let me stand with a smile by the side of the road and cheer as the winners go by.

Prayer of a Sportsman — Berton Braley —

The Fall and Winter seasons were a busy time for a lot of Prep students. For some, the day did not end at 2:45; instead two more hours of strenuous, exhilarating, sweat pouring, and muscle building activities awaited them. Fall and Winter sports gave students a chance to grow both physically and mentally. Each prepster also possessed personal goals they wanted to achieve, whether it be becoming number one in Metro or just crossing that finish line—it took a lot of hard work and determination for everyone.

Participating in any sort of activity at Seattle Prep would give anyone a sense of accomplishment. Obtaining a balance physically, socially, and academically when attending such a challenging school as Prep would be a tremendous achievement on anyone's list. Nevertheless, regardless of what sport one participated in during Fall or Winter, obvious things they had in common were the pride and sportsmanship of Seattle Prep. These traits will remain with them in their future endeavors . . . in search of what life has yet to offer.

Sweet Success!

This year the Cross Country team was in search of the ultimate—beating Lakeside, and they did it! At Metro the boys' team came in first and the girls' team came in third. At Metro Individuals our Panthers took all the best placings. Erik Thompson came in first, Joe Sperry second and Cecil Baird third. For the girls Becky Grandorf placed second overall. The boys went on to District where they placed second. Next was State and a ninth place. We call that a season in search of success.

We Are The Champions

The 1987-88 year was an exceptional time for the Seattle Prep Golf team. Both the girls' and boys' teams did very well. But the boys' team was exemplary—losing not even once. Golf was the sport of champions that year. Using all their skill and might the Panthers roared to victory. At the Metro Individual Tournament our Panthers took the three highest placings. At Metro All-Comers Tournament our girls took the top six placings. And the boys took the top two. It was indeed an incredible year that will go down in Panther history.

A Year To Mature

Because the majority of the 1987 Football team was fairly young, the season was a time for building experience and learning more than anything else. Matt Reimann commented on this by saying, "It was a learning season, which will hopefully have benefitted us for next year." Although they had a tough time of it, including injuries and losses, they battled hard in all of their games and never gave up. Seattle Prep's All-Metro selections were Pat Sievers, Jeff Johnson, Zach McMechan, Joe Lombardi, Don Nguyen and Mike Masterson,

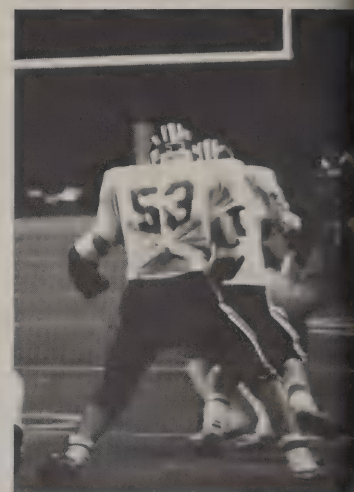

The 1987 fall season was tough, yet with the support of inspirational coaches the team developed the maturity to work towards their goal. With many star underclassmen returning, Prep looks to dominate the Metro league in years to come. With the continual development of the team the search for championship looms imminent.

Junior Varsity Football

Although some of the J.V. players had the opportunity to play with the varsity team, they also gained experience from playing other J.V. opponents. Regardless of their final record, the team did improve on their skills and techniques of the sport. This improvement brought them a greater sense of confidence and competitiveness which will surely benefit them in the future. The "junior varsity" stage was an extremely significant step for the boys of football. It gave them the chance to develop their strength, agility, and feel for the game. The team spent the year learning the components of a winning team. Next year at varsity level, the players will learn to execute these winning components in a consistent manner.

The season provided a learning opportunity, both physically and mentally, for the team in an atmosphere of teamwork and sportsmanship. They were truly in search of the best they could possibly be!

Young Blood

7wenty-eight fresh, young, and enthusiastic players made up the Freshman Football team this year. Through determination and concentration the team formed a sense of unity that carried them forcefully into the season. The coaches focused on developing the basic fundamentals of the sport so that each player would be able to work towards improving his skills and talents.

Since football season began at the beginning of the school year, a lot of the boys weren't very acquainted with one another. However, as the season progressed, they got to know each other; consequently great improvement and team unity occurred. Although statistically it was not a very rewarding season for the freshman team, they came together as a unit with future potential for becoming, as one freshman put it, "AWESOME EMBRYOS!"

Great Expectations

The Girls' Soccer team was outstanding. Their biggest rival was Rainier Beach whom they defeated 1-0. The school showed much support by attending the games and an overall positive attitude was created. Their talent along with this attitude proved to be a winning combination. Coach Hardy had a lot of assistance from two students, Tim Rogers and Cris Leffler and two new faculty members, Mr. Hendrix and Mr. "Conan" Matusak. The majority of the Seattle Prep Girls' Soccer team consisted of underclassmen which gives the team a great potential for winning Metro next year.

A Time to Learn

7his year the Junior Varsity Soccer team was coached by Kathie Kuechler. The players sharpened their skills in an effort to improve their chances of winning, and learned to cooperate with each other on and off the field. They searched for the challenges that would help them to obtain the experience necessary to play an even better game next time. By the end of the season the team succeeded in achieving a deeper appreciation of each others' strong points, which also helped them to have a great time while playing. The girls proved to their opponents and to themselves that they had sportsmanlike behavior while on the field. No matter what the situation of the team next year, the team members feel that the Panther spirit that binds them all together will unite them in the search for an excellent performance. This year, they succeeded in the defense of the Panther pride in their performance with a style and flair that was inspirational.

"The Hoopsters!"

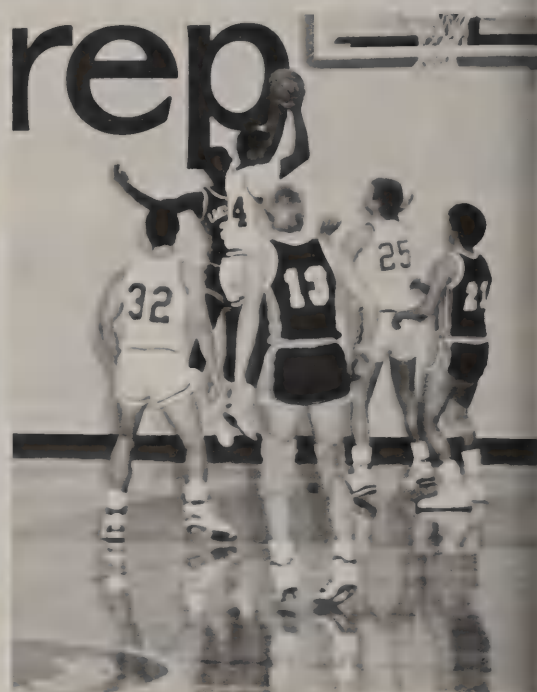

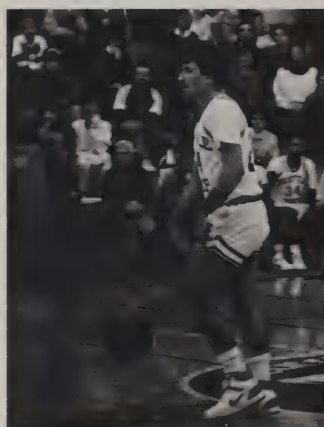

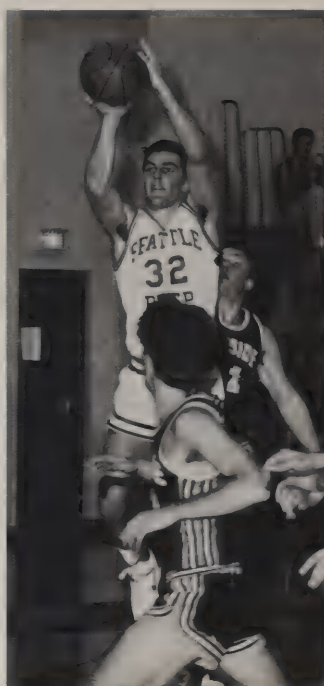

In mid-season, the Seattle Prep Boys' Basketball team had made a great start. They were four and six after having played three teams who were ranked amongst the top five in the state. Over Christmas break, the team went to Alaska for the Ketchikan Tournament. They finished in second place, which was the highest a Prep Basketball team had ever reached. Two outstanding players were Mark Schmitz and Tony Trippy, who were selected to the All Tournament Team.

With the help from other leading players, Pat Sievers, Len Patsula, and Scott Woolly, the team was strong and had the potential for going extremely far in playoffs. John McDowall commented on the season by saying, "We have grown a lot as a team and are continuing to realize that hard work can pay off. We hope to see this fact turn into reality with a strong postseason showing."

Growing Hoopsters

The Junior Varsity Boys were a youthful group that wanted to play hoop. These boys gained valuable playing time by working out with their varsity elders. After three days of intensive tryouts, Coach Lafond, picked the J.V. team. He then whipped these young gentlemen into the best condition of their short lives.

With the addition of player Damion Joseph, the J.V. got rolling. The freshman D.J. came in and averaged thirty points a game. His addition bolstered the already potent firepower of this intense group. Already having Paul Murray and Aaron Murz, the surprise football star turned basketball player, Joe Lombardi joining the team made the group unrivaled in board and bench strength. The outside men Jeff Conrad, Josh Kalmer and Dan Cawdry each contributed different aspects to this team's court presence. Jeff was an intelligent student of the game, his help consisted of a controlled leadership. Josh is very quick and quite reliable. Dan gave the team the much needed defensive spark. The combination of these boys gave the team the appearance of a finely tuned hot rod. In the years to come these boys could fulfill their search for a Metro and State championship.

Splish, Splash

7his year Seattle Prep had its first swim team ever. Coached by Mike McCloskey, the team had a strong turn out with 63 swimmers in all, including a lot of freshman and sophmores. Team captains were Andrea Driano, Allison Moorhead, David Gravenkemper and Eric Schwager. Assistant coaches were Steve Brown, Michelle Callies, and Forest and Cathy Brooks.

The girls were led by a pair of strong leaders in Allison Moorehead and Andrea Driano, both of whom are state caliber. Allison in particular at state this year got fourth place in the 100 yd. backstroke with an All-American considered time and eighth place in the 100 yd. butterfly. Although the boys had no such clear leaders, their group overall was very strong and competitive.

Coach McCloskey was very excited about the prospects of the team. The swimmers put a lot into the sport, getting up at an early hour to get to practice from 6:15-7:15 in the morning. At any given day more that 45 people would show up for practice. It all paid off with a lot of big drops in the times of the team members, and also with the first team victory against Nathan Hale, who placed third in Metro last year.

The team worked hard this year and made the first Prep swim team a big success. A lot of credit goes to all the team members who sacrificed their mornings to work out before school, and especially to the coaches, who encouraged everyone and made winning a little bit easier.

Lady Panthers

Ms. Ritchie calls time out! The girls, all sweaty and exhausted, huddle around their mentor. Senior captains, Jamie Westlund and Becky Grandorf, try to boost morale. There were only a precious few seconds left and the Lady Panthers were only down by one point. Ms. Ritchie diagrams a play—the Hoopsters are going to try one last attempt. The referee blows his shrill whistle—play resumes.

Cathy Dunn whips the rebound to Beth Grandorf, who in turn gets the ball to her sister Becky. Becky sets up the play—it's got to work. Meanwhile Jamie is cutting behind a perfect screen—she's in the clear! Becky throws her a perfect pass. Jamie attempts to shoot but is fouled. The crowd roars—the pressure is on!! SWISH! The game is tied. CLANK—she misses, Cathy Dunn gets the rebound and puts it in! Prep wins the game.

The Girls' Basketball season was one of gaining experience on the court and off. Leadership, unity and a positive mental attitude allowed the girls to get through the season and have a great time.

The junior varsity girls showed the poise and maturity of a cohesive team. This team was young, exuberant and alive. They made up for a lack of experience with an incredible amount of energy. Team unity and improvement were the the main factors in the teams' success.

Behind the impressive play of three freshman, Nikki Paul, Nikki Miller and Tiffany Purvis, the team battled strong. The three let their early inexperience develop into a powerful mix of court sense and tenacity to become key players in the future Prep teams.

Deviation from Reality

Everyone at Prep seemed to agree that we got quite a good share of Math. Although only two years of it was required in Washington state, Prepsters got a total of three years and some opted for a fourth year of Precalculus or A.P. Calculus. "Math builds patience" said an optimistic student. "It may seem worthless but in the long run we all come out better with it." Surely our talented Math instructors agreed. They teach a variety of courses which students could choose from.

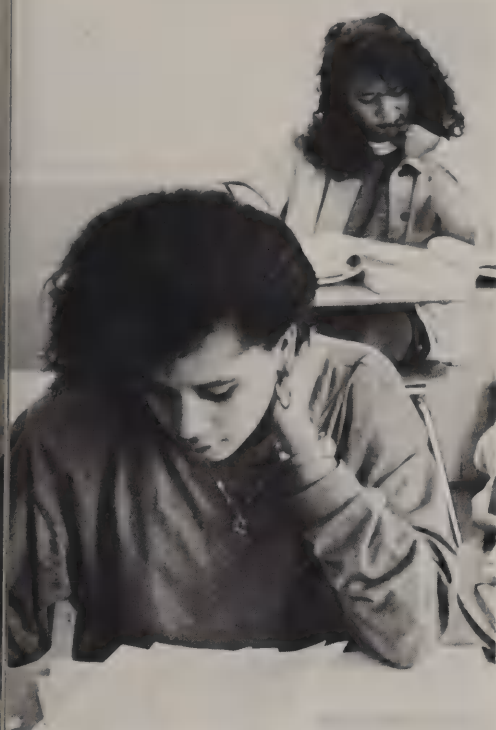

Freshman were offered Algebra I and Algebra/Trigonometry, the latter being the more difficult. All sophmores were required to take two trimesters of Geometry and one trimester of Algebra/Trigonometry which most students continued in their junior year. Other options for juniors were Algebra II and Pre-Calculus. We were all in search of a Math class that would challenge us, yet was passable too. Hopefully we all succeeded; especially in terms of passing.

Science was a very important subject at Seattle Prep. It started off freshman year with an introduction to physical science which covered basic physics and chemistry, and then followed with biology sophomore year, Optional Unified Science or chemistry junior year, and optional Advanced Placement Biology or physics senior year. The goal of the science program was to make the students more knowledgeable about scientific literature and to enable to use the science they learned to help them solve problems in their everyday lives. Encouraging students to be in search of the world around them was Prep's major objective.

How Do You Say...?

Learning a foreign language is one of the best ways to experience a different culture. Two years of a foreign language were necessary with an option to study three or four years. Students could choose from French, Spanish, German or Japanese depending on their own tastes.

A lot of credit should be given to our teachers who were always thinking of new ways to make the language fun. Field trips to see foreign movies, feasting on foreign food, playing games and singing songs were a few of their techniques. Of course book work wasn't left out but the combination provided for a good cultural background. Who knows, Prep could become famous for their foreign diplomats in search for world peace!!

A Class Of Chaos?

In Collegio we were in search of ourselves. We realized our potential growth and it brought us the world. The model UN helped us comprehend the magnanimous world and the intricate policies involved with it. Journal writing and reflections helped us in understanding our motives and gave us a four year account of our loves, hates, our good times and our worst times. The others in our collegio groups were our friends. We grew tired of each other some times, but, for the most part we learned and grew with the friends we made. We searched for answers to the questions of war, poverty, love, religion and death. Collegio gave us the tools, knowledge and confidence to discover what each of us as unique individuals really wanted to search for and discover.

Artists and Athletes

The Aesthetic—Artistic Development and Psycho—Physical Development courses were taken the first two years at Prep; years three and four were optional. For freshmen AAD included one trimester each of music, drama, and the Visual Arts. PPD, a yearlong course, involved different aspects of health and sports.

Sophomores and juniors chose from such electives as drama, photography, music, aquatics, Team Sports, and Racquet Sports. This selection gave students the chance to enhance their personal curricula in the tradition of the well—rounded education at Seattle Prep. All the academic offerings at Prep have been geared towards filling the spectrum for its students. Each class they participated in gave them an experience they will remember and use for the rest of their lives—as they continue in search of knowledge.

... Faculty

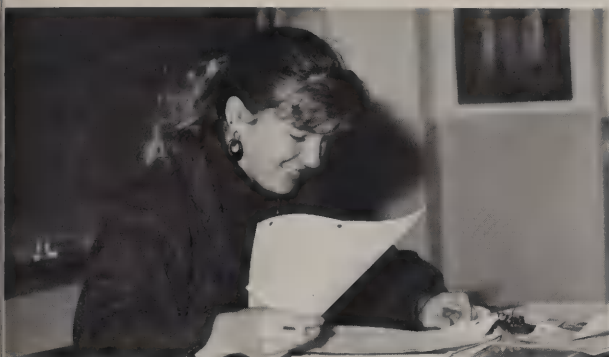

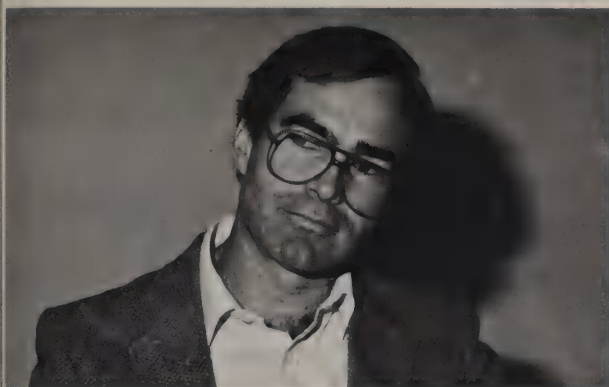

The faculty were an integral part of the Prep community. This year, many new teachers joined the veterans in their striving to better the quality of education for the students. The faculty were not only educators, but friends. In the course of the year, teachers gave that extra hand to students to assist them in their search for academic, social, and personal growth. Seattle Prep's faculty played a truly significant part in the students' lives and in their quest for excellence.

Jennifer Brown, a true pioneer at heart, was always in search of adventure and challenges to enrich her life. Ms. Brown, an English and religion teacher, was born and raised in Columbus, Ohio. As a high school student, Ms. Brown was very involved in school activities: plays, sports, and student government. During college (she attended the University of Notre Dame) she spent six months in Mexico and Nicaragua as an exchange student. After college she lived and worked in an underprivileged community in Puerto Rico, where she taught first grade. Her next assignment was Seattle Prep.

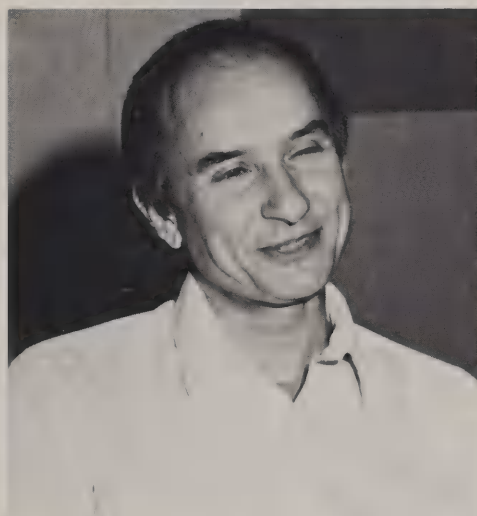

She enjoyed teaching here tremendously, especially because of the students. They were not only her students, but also her friends. Said Ms. Brown, "Sometimes I can't believe I get paid to talk with students about their ideas of God. This opportunity helps me develop a very special relationship with them."

In the future, Ms. Brown would like to further her education, build strong friendships, and have another third world experience. Wherever she goes and whatever she does, she will be searching for God, inner peace, and new adventures!

The 1987-88 school year brought about a big change for Mr. Gummarsall. He was promoted to Assistant Principal for Student Life. In this position he worked very closely with the students and faculty as the manager of all athletic and non-athletic activities. He was the 'king' of our social lives. In addition, he further united the school by developing good relations with our teachers. Although he was also in charge of discipline, he liked to deal with it in a positive way.

Mr. Gummarsall first came to Prep as a freshman in high school. He graduated in 1981 and attended Seattle University. After graduation, he came back to Prep and taught computers for four years before receiving his current job. His goal for his first year in his new job was to design activities that would involve as many students as possible. He thinks Prep is the best school in the city and he strives to be the best he can be. We think he's pretty successful in that area already.

Mrs. Georgie Decker
Choral Director/AAD

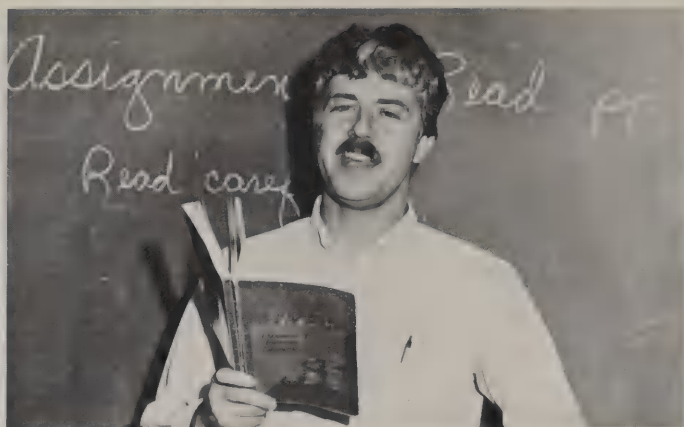

So fight, fight, fight for Adelphia; and the blue and white will win!" Mrs. Georgie Decker sings proudly; she was the new chorus and music teacher at Prep this year. She decided to come here because of Prep's emphasis on community and the intergration of arts and sciences. She had also heard of the desire for a choral performance department at Prep, something she was interested in becoming involved in.

When Mrs. Decker was in high school, she was searching for a way to make her mark on the world and develop her musical talents. She already knew that she wanted to be a teacher. She imagined that Prep students are looking for the same things she was: money, fame, love and stardom; and she hopes they follow their dreams.

Right now Mrs. Decker wants to "be able to make the most out of each day on this journey of life." The only way to deal with the future is to live the present moment to its fullest and let what lies ahead take care of itself.

A relatively new member of Seattle Prep's faculty, this was Mitsuko Okada's second year teaching Japanese. Although she wasn't seeking the job, she was honored when asked to come to Seattle Prep. She was impressed by how well the Catholic school system worked in comparison to other systems in which she had worked. She also liked the atmosphere and the students' will to reach their goals.

Mrs. Okada was raised in Japan where education was different in many aspects. The main goal for Japanese students was to study for college entrance exams. Japanese students were given no chance to dream about their futures. Being a teacher at Prep Mrs. Okada hoped not only to teach the Japanese language and culture, but also to help students be open and adjustable to different cultures. She was envious of the American student's chance to dream.

D. Olson*

The 1987-88 school year marked Dennis Olson's eighteenth year at Seattle Prep. He enjoyed teaching at Prep because of the Jesuit approach to education. At Prep, there was an openness to questioning and searching for the truth. The school was a community of intelligent people who were interested in discussing and teaching with an open attitude.

Mr. Olson believed that, ultimately, we are all searching for God. We are urged to see God in all things, to see the glory of creation which is manifested in all things, and to ultimately know the truth. We may never find that truth in this lifetime, but that is our search.

For Search of . . .

... Freshmen

This year's freshman class was searching for their place in the Prep Community, and after those first weeks of confusion, they seemed to have found it. As one freshman put it, they were "the hyper class." The incredible energy and enthusiasm which they possessed made them stand out among the other classes at Prep. The freshmen's spirited participation in all activities was evident wherever one looked. Their smiling faces and very loud voices were seen and heard on sports teams, at games, dances and bar-b-ques, and throughout the halls of our school.

Also known as the "Embryos," the unbelievable vitality of the freshmen was not their only unique quality. Something very special about this class was their genuine acceptance of everyone. This brought about the strong unity which existed within the freshman class.

Karl Longin wasn't searching for too much. (— that's too bad 'cause if he had been it would have tied in great with the theme.) Karl was in collegio group BX with his friend Tillman Thomas who accompanied him on his interview. Oh yes — here I can tie in the theme! I was searching ardently for Karl in the lunchroom Wednesday. We had planned the interview for Wednesday, 12:30 lunch which happened to be the biggest lunch. So I wasted ten of the precious forty five minutes searching wholeheartedly for my interviewee. At last I found him, (and his friend).

Question one: Do you like Prep, Karl? "It's okay . . . oh, this is for the yearbook, right? Yea, I like it a lot." Tillman chimed in, "Too much homework, mannn, way too much homework. And yea mannn, they should let us eat OUTSIDE."

Question two: So why do you like it a lot Karl? "Well, the teachers really care and let you express your thoughts." (ohhh, I was happy, a SERIOUS answer.) "They reserve their judgements and ask you how you feel before they tell you things."

Question three: Why do you think you got into Prep, Karl? "Well, my dad used to work over at Seattle U. He helped set up the Matteo Ricci program, so I guess his name is kinda well known around the important people." (Uh oh, this would look real wonderful for the school!) "But," Karl interjected, "I got really good grades at St. Theresa's." (Whew, wipe the sweat from my brow!).

Meredith Gibson, a freshman at Prep, is a diverse and well rounded person. She came to Prep from Meany Middle School and entered because "my best friend signed up . . ." Meredith liked Prep, saying that the teachers were fun people, and expressed surprise at their young ages. Academically, she loved math and found science a challenge. Journals were not a favorite, so she usually did her three entries the night before they were due!

Meredith loved to travel. For two and a half years, she lived in Central and South America. She spent six months travelling the U.S. and six weeks in New Zealand. Meredith hopefully wants to go to New Guinea and China. With this travel experience, she would be a great foreign consultant. She planned to launch this occupation at Georgetown University.

Personally, Meredith was independent and self-confident. Her music reflected a creative image too; her favorite group was "The Cure". The sports she participated in were J. V. soccer and the newly created swim team. All in all Meredith was an interesting and innovative person. Prep benefitted from all of her good qualities.

Ridge Marshall went to St. Anne's before he came to Prep and he liked Prep much more than he liked St. Annes. He especially liked the Prep teachers. They cared. He said that really sounded corny — that they cared, "but they do!"

Ridge was "totally different from everyone else." He was really into peace. Ridge liked the Prep community, but wasn't too involved in it himself. "Well", he explains, "football is a fascist sport."

As an adult Ridge saw himself in any of three places. 1. England (that's where his parents are from) 2. South Africa (helping the repressed blacks) 3. Wall Street (making money). Ridge saw himself as a Ghandi type of person, maybe a revolutionist of some sort.

If Ridge were stranded on a desert island the two things he'd have with him would be a plane and a girl. A plane so he could fly to the mainland and get more things. And a girl for . . . well you know. Ridge had three favorite sayings that summed up the kind of person he was: 1. Make love, not war 2. Draft beer, not men 3. The story of a loser — it could be you.

There were two things David McAuliffe especially liked about Prep. "The strong athletic program" and "the community spirit". At first David seemed like a typical jock, but deep down he's a peace lovin' kind of dude. David came to Prep because his sister did. He went to St. Joe's with the other billion St. Joe's kids that have attended Prep.

David was involved with the Prep community. He played Frosh football and Junior Varsity soccer. David liked the thrill derived from contact sports. He described himself as a "real average person with a free spirit." He really cared about other people and understood that there were different kinds of people with different perspectives in life. He liked to take this into account before he judged others.

Ten or fifteen years from now David saw himself as a well-off bachelor, "who worked hard by day and partied hard by night." David was a very open guy who wanted to be successful when he grew up. Good luck to your champagne wishes and career dreams, David!

She liked Prep although she felt she was not learning too much she's going to need to know in later life, "Like, I Mean, P.P.D." she explained. Collegio, she liked. She liked the quiet time. Was she a quiet person? "No, I'm not a quiet person, I am more of an OBNOXIOUS person. Yea, I'm independent, . . . I don't really care what people think of me, I really try to be myself."

In twenty five years Athena saw herself as a pilot living in a Downtown Seattle Highrise. "I really love the city, I'm such an urban kind of person." Wasn't Athena worried about the recent fatality of many pilots? "If I die, I die . . . at least I tried."

Just by looking at her watch we could see the kind of person Athena was. The watch was a big green eye that moved. Then, when you turned the watch you could see the numbers. In a way that was like Athena: on the outside she appeared to be quiet, easygoing and ordinary. Once you got talking to her and understood her there was something beneath the surface that was full of meaning and usefulness.

... Sophomores

Nicknamed the "Happy Campers" Seattle Prep's sophomore class was in search of fun and excitement. With the first uncertainties of freshman year far behind them, and decisions such as college still in the future, sophomore year was a year to have a good time. Taking on an unconcerned and carefree attitude, the sophomores tried their best to find the entertainment they were seeking.

This was a class full of many different types of people, people with their own opinions and values. There was a feeling of friendship and trust that bonded the sophomores together. In fact, the diversity within the sophomore class only added to their qualities of creativity and originality.

Cheryl Atkinson was a sophomore this year who had a happy go-lucky attitude. She was always trying to see the best in things, and help others see them too. Cheryl was preceded at Prep by both her older brother and sister. This was a large factor in her decision to come to Prep; she admired the unity of the school. "The students are so friendly! You get to know practically everyone who goes here."

Cheryl felt that both the academics and athletics at Prep were set at high standards. "You were constantly being challenged. The classes try to get as much out of you as possible." Cheryl was involved in both volleyball and basketball; in fact, she was captain of the J.V. volleyball team. She carried the team to many victories, and her enthusiasm was always welcomed.

When asked about the faculty she said they were great. "The faculty really seem to care about you and gave that extra help." They gave the students support and encouragement. Together, the spirit they mustered was phenomenal.

Cheryl was searching for many things in her future. Primarily she was looking for grades that would give her a scholarship to a good college. With her spirit and enthusiasm, I'm sure she'll find them.

"I really liked to help cheer people up. I guess I am just a happy guy." Greg Giraldo was a really special guy. This year he was a Natural Helper who was involved in football, volleyball and soccer. Greg really like Prep. He thought it was a great school with a wonderful atmosphere. "Everyone is so close, you became friends with everybody." He felt that the teachers really cared and if you looked close enough, you could see the little kid in them.

Greg thought the academics at Prep were really high quality. "They push you, not so much that you go crazy, but enough." He also felt that the kids at Prep were really involved. They could really generate a lot of spirit. He thought that Prep could improve by adding more in-school activities for the kids who can't stay after school.

If Greg were able to look into the future, he imagined he'd see that everyone at Prep would out with lifetime friendships, warm memories and lots of happiness . . . "maybe we'll grow up a little too!"

He enjoyed activities such as soccer, basketball and swimming. His least favorites included Saturday jug, lunch on campus and the student guide. Who is this person you ask? Why Christian Mills, of course. Christian described himself as sort of a jolly guy with a short attention span. This year Christian was quite active in the theatre. He had a large role in the fall play entitled "Tom Jones". When asked about his opinion of Prep, he felt that it was a great school with strong academics and spirit. "But the spirit could be improved in certain areas, you know."

Christian came to Prep primarily because of its reputation and the fact that most of his friends would be coming. The majority of them were sophomores this year. "It is a great class, and we have really grown a lot since our freshman year." He felt that the sophomores were a unique class that had a lot of strength and leadership. "I just wish they would take school more seriously!"

When Christian was asked about what he is searching for, he stated that it certainly wouldn't be a job behind a desk. He wanted excitement in his life, something that would keep him interested.

Mariah really felt that Prep was a great school with strong academics. "We have really skilled teachers. They truly seem to enjoy teaching. They accept your personal ideas, while pushing you to look deeper." She thought that the students at Prep really respected one another and they accepted everyone. "This school is varied with all ranges of personalities, yet everyone gets along." She also felt that Prep was full of creative and smart people.

When asked what she was searching for, Mariah stated that she was not really sure. "I guess, that I am just looking for the grades that will get me into a good college." With Mariah's dedication and responsibility, she'll do that and much more. You can bet on it!

... Juniors

The pressure was on for the junior class. We had been told countless times by countless teachers how very important that year was to our search for fame and success in the future. Good grades were imperative to acceptance in good colleges (and for the quest for scholarship monies). "Alternatives" was the key word that year. Making choices for our futures was easier said than done. The options seemed unlimited: studying overseas, going to MRC II at S.U., seeking early admit at other colleges, staying at Prep for a fourth year.

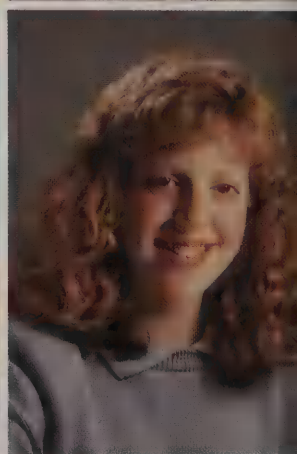

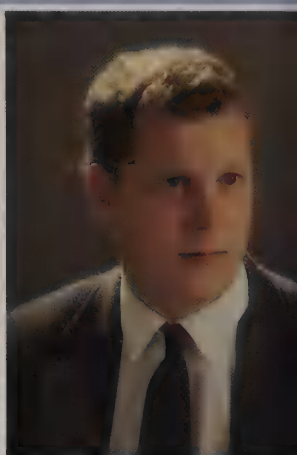

The year flew by in a flurry of decisions, tests, activities, and deadlines. Our junior class searched diligently for the answers to the PSAT, SAT, and WPCT. We learned how to live on just four hours of sleep and how to shower and study at the same time. For juniors there was no time for the national pastime, television. There seemed to be no end to the vicious cycle of study—homework—quiz—test—study—homework—quiz—test. Each day brought us a step closer to the end and that's what made it bearable. But as the year drew to a close we saw how spirited and tenacious we really were. We had survived, thanks to the help of family, friends, teachers, and Vivarin.

The only thing Darrius Willrich was searching for was May 20, 1988 — THE LAST DAY OF SCHOOL. He summed up his junior class feelings with the succinct comment, "I'm looking for a way to get rich quick, because life is too short to get rich slow!"

The three years which Aurora Almeda has spent here at Seattle Prep have probably been the most memorable moments in her life. Entering as a freshman, she found herself looking for new styles, new friends, and at times "found myself looking for a new me." As sophomore year took its turn, she began to focus more on the "real me — who I was and what I was looking for." In the midst of it all, she finally began to focus in on what life as a teenager was all about. Education, self motivation, and the quest for success soon played their parts, and now as a junior, she has come to a self realization. She has realized just how important the years at Prep have really been, and she would probably say her expectations and her accomplishments are based on learning anything and possibly everything. That's what it is all about.

*P*rep has helped Jason Graham in many ways. The challenging atmosphere at Prep helped him to grow and gain strength. The academics helped him enhance his intellectual skills, while cross country kept him in top condition.

The most important thing Prep gave students was the motivation to explore the different interests of the world, and Jason took this opportunity and participated in the Rotary Exchange Program. The program enabled him to spend 1986 studying at a school in Argentina and living with three different families.

Perhaps, in twenty years, at a high school reunion, we will discover that Jason could not attend because he was in a foreign country helping some needy cause.

Even though this was Jennifer O'Connor's first year at Prep, she had a lot to say about the people she met here and the type of education she received. Jennifer felt that by going to Prep she received an excellent education which will aid her in the future. Due to the religion requirement, she feels that she has learned about faith and that helped her get in touch with herself. Growing closer to God in this way enabled her to make good friendships. Her involvement in soccer has also helped her along these lines. She feels that the friendships she has built are her greatest accomplishment. These friendships will last for all time.

Elizabeth Sorenson is one of those rare people who truly care for others. The most important thing to her at Prep was maintaining a feeling of community so that everyone was happy and felt like they belonged. She is searching for unity, oneness, friendship, and love.

Elizabeth feels that Prep is a good school because it prepares the students for college. Because of the small number of students at Prep, Elizabeth says that she made many close friends and that she learned to work with others; to "help them and be helped." She also feels that she received much support for good grades and hard work.

For her, support must have really abounded because her grades were outstanding and just one of her many accomplishments. Dancing, which she has been doing for fourteen years, is important to her as is teaching dancing. Elizabeth loved being a Natural Helper and working with people. Being part of the chorus was enjoyable and, says Elizabeth, "just made me feel good."

Elizabeth has grown and matured a lot during her life at Prep. She made numerous friends here, excelled in her school work, and was involved in many activities. Her friendly smile and joking manner were seen and appreciated every day. Elizabeth is sad to be leaving Prep but we know her ambition will take her far.

... Seniors

A vast variety of unique and outstanding people were what created the image of diversity in the senior class — otherwise known as the infamous “Ezells”. However, one obvious similarity that they shared as a class, was their search for what lay beyond the confined “high school era”. The incredible possibilities such as: entering a university, making new friends, getting a job, and moving away from the security of home were scary yet exciting thoughts that entered a senior’s mind throughout this year. Fortunately, Prep succeeded in adequately preparing the seniors for what lay beyond the limitless horizon.

Because this was their last year at Prep, an important priority was to have “the best year of high school ever!” As the high school year of the 1988 senior class came to an end, the closer the bonds of friendship became and the harder it was to leave and face a “different world”. Some seniors speculated as they reminisced about the past four years, “If I could only relive just one more year of highschool — would I? Nah!!” As each year started and progressed forward, they had doubts, fears, joys, and new beginnings. They discovered different interests and special, unique people through their maturity and experiences.

However, high school memories only become what we make of them. We might have chosen to cast them away and forget them forever — or we might have chosen to keep the echo of “The Ezells” living on within our minds as the best senior class to ever leave Seattle Prepatory School.

Amy Royer spent her high school years in search of good times, good friends, and a good education. She claims to have found all three at Prep. During her four years at Prep, Amy participated in drama productions both on and off stage, was a member of Natural Helpers, and was the Seattle Prep president of the National Honor Society. She would like to be remembered as a great friend who was always happy and pleasant to be around. In twenty years she would like to have made it to New York City and to have achieved fame and fortune. When asked to capsule the senior class in one sentence she stated, “We are easy-going fun-loving, social Prepsters.”

During her high school years, Becky Grandorf sought to gain a better perspective about her future career as well as become a more independent individual. Becky has shown her athletic talents by being a top-rate competitor in cross country, track and basketball. Her track credits brighten Prep's stats: third in districts freshman and sophomore year, third in state junior year, and winner of regional Junior Olympics which sent her to Utah to compete in the nationals. She claimed that high school has taught her the significance of friendship and how to deal with problems in a more mature, sensitive manner. High school years to Becky were extremely important and she attests to this by advising that "these moments only come once in your life, get involved and do all you can. In other words, you only get out of it what you put into it."

Senior Len Patsula claimed he enjoys taking part in sports and sporting events — “especially hoop!” However, while Len was not running around dunking basketballs, he was searching for “a more independent self and a firmer grasp of the essence to my future.” He admitted his strong desire to be a wealthy man working in a major engineering corporation. Len smiled when he said, “I think I can find happiness through my wealth.” Throughout his experiences in high school, he has gained more knowledge of his true self through his friends and discovered his major interests. Maturity was a particular aspect that Len Patsula feels he has achieved. His advice to others is to “have fun, because your high school years are what you make of them!”

Jason Weinmeister: in search of the answers. Jason has been looking for intellectual and emotional growth, and he has found it at Prep. He says, "I feel I've become a better person in dealing with other people." Beyond Prep, Jason is not too certain what he will do. "I don't think anyone knows what they're looking for. I'll know when I find it." He plans to live for today.

That's What Friends Are For

Throughout our lives we've searched for friendship, for that special person who would be there when times were tough, not only there for a good time. This year we've made a lot of friends to treasure forever. They are friends whom we may leave, but whom we can look back and call upon when need be.

Good friends don't interfere unnecessarily in your business. When they do they usually have a good reason, such as caring about you. They also do a lot of things to make you feel good about yourself and your life. They have shoulders to lean on and cry on. They do little things that may not make your life better, but may make you feel better.

In the end, the thing that separates good friends from mere acquaintances is this: They care, they listen to you, they try to understand you. All the warmth you feel when you know someone cares makes the uncertainty about who will be your friend, the unknowing, and the time it takes to find that special person all worthwhile.

... Spring Ahead

7 he weathermen were in search of rain. Small green things had found enough water to survive, and were popping up everywhere. Most of the school year was behind us. We had time to stop, take a breath, and look around.

Things were happening at Prep. Mr. Thomas' roses were blooming. The tennis team was winning in their brightest "tennis whites". Thesbian Panthers acted and sang in "Roar of the Greasepaint, the Smell of the Crowd". Baseball was off to a good start. The seniors and some juniors were looking forward to the end of the high school "experience". Many a fat envelope arrived in a Panther's mailbox (meaning of course COLLEGE ACCEPTANCE) and a few unbearably thin ones, too.

It was leap year and things were going on in the Big World too. The Russians had taken the gold at the Winter Olympics and none were too sure they wouldn't do it again in the summer. Reagan spent his last spring watching the cherry blossoms bloom on the White House lawn.

The sophomores were gearing up for their United Nations presentations; spending seemingly thousands of hours gathering data, facts, and figures from various libraries.

All around things were beginning to hustle and bustle once again. Winter's weary shadow was gone and somehow all felt a weight uplifted.

The Roar and Smell of Success!

One of the most original musicals ever cast at Seattle Prep took center stage in May. "The Roar of the Greasepaint, The Smell of the Crowd" was a satire on life. It was a comedy dealing with issues of love and possession. There was a strong cast despite the fact that many of the members were newcomers to the musical field. They had a lot of enthusiasm and energy for their work and they did a great job! Their search for musical success was a reality.

A Year for Glory

The mighty Seattle Prep Baseball Team was out to dominate the Metro league. Picked as pre-season favorites, the Panthers were a force to contend with. The team was led by many experienced veteran seniors. Co-captains Joel Fraunheim and Scott Baxter provided the necessary leadership and enthusiasm to build a powerhouse.

For the first time in a couple of years Prep presented a J.V. team as well. The J.V. team, consisting of mostly freshman and sophomores, worked out daily with the varsity as one big squad. This is beneficial for two reasons, first they get to watch returning All-Metro players like Tony Trippy and Jeff Johnson, and second they get to experience baseball at a varsity level. The schedule works out so that both teams play games on Mondays and Wednesdays and on Friday a few J.V. players get called up to play with the varsity. This provides the younger players with a glimpse of glory. The team spent the early week-ends in the season working out for eight hours or more on holidays and week-ends. The work was extremely hard but as senior second baseman Brad Knowles said, "When we win Metro, all this hard work and gettin' up early is going to feel real good".

Fancy Foot Work

7 or the 1988 spring season, Prep's Varsity Soccer Team had talent unmatched by any former Prep team for twelve years. Most of the team had varsity experience and their coach, Mr. Sandstrom, had a history of taking good teams far. Some star players were Cris Leffler, Jim Shea, and Tim Rogers. They looked forward to challenging O'Dea for the league title and with a team so rich in talent, there was no doubt that they would.

Growing Talent

The 1988 Boys' Junior Varsity Soccer Team was basically the same as that of the 1987 season. One of the things that their coach, Mr. Hardy wanted was for them to develop a sense of teamwork and comradery even stronger than they already had. The season was going to be a time for them to prepare for varsity and, most importantly, to have a good time!

Good Times 'At Bat'

There were some changes on the Softball Team this year. The biggest one was that Mr. Baker took over as head coach. He said he had a lot of fun coaching the team and they really got to know one another well.

The team had a majority of juniors playing with some sophomores and only one senior and one freshman. At least half of the team was inexperienced but they made up for it with their enthusiasm and excitement.

The softball team didn't need to search for having fun, they surpassed all of their fun expectations!

Footloose!

7he Track Season started with a bang this year, fielding a team that according to Head Coach Mike Niggemeyer "... is the largest that Prep has seen in quite a few years." Despite the size, however, unity permeated the spirit of the team and made for a positive season. "It's great to know that everyone is so supportive of each other," said Co-captain Jennifer Campbell. "Having someone there with a positive attitude whether you win or not is a good feeling." Co-captains Eric Tuazon and Jim Neil felt the boys could dominate the league this year even with such powerhouses as R.B. and Chief Sealth. With the vast diversity of talent on the Track Team and the strong senior leadership, the team possessed great anticipation for a record-breaking, successful season.

Tennis Anyone?

Spring is a season of bright beautiful colors. That year (as every other year) it meant the start of another tennis season and tennis whites. Prep had an especially strong team, with exceptional odds. Each day after school for two hours the team practiced stroke after stroke and their efforts paid off. Ms. Dumas and Dan Crist led the team to victory while each student's own efforts and participation were what truly led to an unforgettable year.

An Athlete's Search for . . .

The students at Seattle Prep had a wide range of interests and abilities that the school was not able to completely accommodate at times. This included the interest of sports. So our students went in search of possibilities elsewhere. The major sports that the students participated in were lacrosse, gymnastics, wrestling, crew, rugby and swimming. A lot of students participated in these activities. Among the students that participated in lacrosse were Joe Ruef, Jorge Sevilla and Chris Jensen, in gymnastics were Dorothy Godsil and Sara Dixon, in wrestling were Geme Calman, Kevin Judson and Chris Doughty, in rugby Ritch Hutchings and Christian Mills, in crew Cara Jacobsen and Emily Buck and in swimming Nathan Tony and Allison Moorehead.

The search for the exhilaration of sports, these people have stretched beyond the boundaries of Prep in order to fulfill their dreams and to reach their fullest potential.

Prep Patagonian Venture 1997

Last summer eleven Prepsters and three adults headed for the wilds of Peru. They were in search of more than just a vacation-much more. June 14 the troop left Seattle-Tacoma airport and began their forty day journey. The first stop was Arequipa. Arequipa is a small town in the southern part of Peru. The troop spent two weeks in Arequipa helping a local school build the foundation for "Club de Madres" (A Mothers Club). After Arequipa the troop set out to see the ruins of Machupichu, the capitol city of Lima, and the splendor of Lake Titicaca (the highest elevated lake in the world). They also spent some time in Aquitos, a part of the Amazon Jungle. There they fished for piranas, hunted alligators and swam with dolphins. The Peru trip of '87 was more than just an adventure. It was an opportunity for a few to see a world that seemed an eternity away from Seattle Prep. The beauty of Peru and the Peruvian people was a trip from which the Seattle Prep troop brought back many wonderful memories.

A Taste of Foreign Culture

The summer of '87 was a great year to go abroad. The dollar was down but that didn't seem to stop any Prep students. Peru was the big deal that year but a couple of other educational ventures took place in faraway places.

Mrs. Diana Plumis took Mike Masterson and Nick Harvey to the Soviet Union as part of "Glasnost" People to People sponsored U.S. high school student tour of the Soviet Union. They visited Moscow and Leningrad. They also visited a few less heard about places such as Lvov, Baku, Sochi, and Riga. Except for a short bout with the Russian stomach flu it was a mind-opening, exciting experience.

Frau Zaugg took a few of her German students to West Germany. They visited all the big cities and witnessed the famous beer festival. While they picked up some new German words (Where is the bathroom?) they had an absolute blast. Five Prep kids, namely Jorge Sevilla, Alvin Foote, Lori Billings, Coby Stites, and Ted Mansfield participated in what turned out to be one of the most fun educational experiences a kid could hope for.

Jim, well hello there! So what should I say to one of the most sexiest, funniest, not to mention fine-ass babes of Seattle Prep? Well we've had so many good times together—especially at those dances junior year! Yup—Prom and told were truly "an experience!" you make me feel happy—and I love you for it. Too bad nothing every really happened between us—if you know what I mean ("). Well—In Search of Tomorrow—friendship means a lot to me—I'm serious. Too bad Notre Dame didn't work out as we wanted it to—oh well—Anyways if you ever go down to Cali next year in L.A. please make it a point to find me at LMU and we can party. Take care—I love you!

With love Always Friends

Maria D'Amico

(1) keep that
'shea' smile!

P.S. Say 'hi' and give my love to molly!

SHEA,
THE FOUR YEAR JOURNEY TO FREEDOM IS OVER. I LIKE WHAT I SEE AHEAD OF BOTH OF US. I CAN ALREADY SMELL IT.
IT IS SUCCESS!! YOU HAVE BEEN A BEST FRIEND TO ME,
EVEN THOUGH I MESS WITH YOUR MIND, I'M ONLY TRYING TO KEEP YOU HONEST AND HUMBLE. DON'T WANT YOU TO GET TOO BIG OF A HEAD, IT'S NOT GOOD FOR THE SIZE
OF YOUR ASS! CAN YOU BELIEVE OUR HIGH SCHOOL CAREER ENDED ON A COUPLE OF SHANKED PENALTY KICKS; IT WAS TO LAKESIDE TO TOP IT ALL OFF. NOT A GOOD WAY TO END THE YEAR, BUT IT WAS A WONDERFUL YEAR
AND FOUR YEARS. EVEN THOUGH YOU WERE EXCLUDED
FROM SQUIRT GUNS '88. YOU ALWAYS HAVE EGG-FEST '86
TO HOLD IN YOUR HEART. YOU'VE GOT GOOD OLD
PAPA SHEA, MOM, KELLY, AND MOLLY → ONE HELLUVA FAMILY. WE WILL BE FRIENDS FOR LIFE AND WHEN I COME UP FROM SANTA CLARA I CAN PARTY WITH YOU FRAT BOYS.

GOTTA GO!

Timmy Rogers

JIM - WELL ITS BEEN 4 LONG YEARS Jim

Jim,
 We actually made it! Its hard to believe that were all going away next year. Its too bad that our friendship took a strange turn this year because you are a very special person to me. I love you for all of your compassion, sincerity and humor. There will always be a special place for you in my heart. Good luck next year and please keep in touch.

Love always ☺
 Beth Valentine

 DID YOU FART? WELL BUDDY WE FINALLY MADE IT. THE SAGA OF
 TWO SCHOLARS (JUST KIDDING), RIGHT NOW WE HAVE ONLY ONE HOUR OF
 HIGH SCHOOL LEFT. WE'VE HAD SOME GOOD TIMES, SEAFAIR, OF COLLEGIO
 PROMS, PARTIES. YOU'VE BEEN A GREAT FRIEND WITH A MIGHTY LARGE ANUS. GOOD LUCK AT UW PALE I'M SURE YOUR GONNA BE A SUCCESS.

Jimmy T.
 Well pal I see you are the summer and I'm sure we'll keep in touch.

Jim -
 Have a good summer and next year will get you back here
 teach a class

Jim,
 We have finally wrapped up our senior year and don't have Mr. Towhys lectures to contend with. That will sure make a good head rest and he often let us sleep right through his little analysis. Have fun at UW and call if you make it down to Cali.

I can't you tell that this is probably all over?
 Well, I have to tell you that you are one of the my favorite guys. I got to be happy that I got to know you. I am sure you are such a sweet and great guy to be around. I hope that you can all see each other over the summer at all those who parties
 you are parties fun always. I hope you are and always drop make no many please Tell you

Jimmy!!

Can't just start out by telling you, I LOVE YOU almost as much as I love my main man - you know who...

MICHAEL JORDAN

... of course, you can never be quite that live, but then again, why compare yourself to God?! Seriously, you are pretty live & I'm SO happy I was lucky enough to be your friend - you have SUCH a cute little face!! we have been through quite a lot together & I am going to miss you TONS next fall. So, I hope you get off your lazy ass (sorry about the profanity!) & visit the Big Apple. No doubt I'm going to party w/ you when you become a Big time frat boy!! Jim - you are an awesome guy - sexy, sweet, hip, hot, macho - everything I want in a man - basically I LOVE YOU & want to thank you for being such a great friend!! you are truly the best, so please stay in touch because I'll miss you!!!

Love,
Yinnie

* Don't get too wild!!

P.S. Take care of my shirt - I may want it back some day
P.P.S. you can borrow my Steve Miller tape

I can't believe we finally made it out of school. It's been great fun in classes, and at parties, and of course on the field. Classes suck so I won't even talk about that. Sidepack you pretty animal. It's been a blast in all these little social gatherings. Next year when your at the UW I better get some calls about your crazy parties. Keep playing the only real sport. Good luck next year!
